

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides compounds and methods for the detection of protein-protein interactions wherein said interactions are dependent on the presence or absence of post-translational modifications (PTMs) of at least one of the proteins.